

The Daily Market Report

PORTLAND, April 15.—Forty cents a barrel was added to the cost of patent flour in the wholesale market today, making the price $6.05 a barrel, the highest known here in years. An advance to the same level is effective in the Puget Sound markets today. At the same time export grades were raised 20 cents, the price of this flour now being $4.70 a barrel. An advance in flour values had been expected for some time, for wheat is steadily going up for weeks and the market at the present high level is decidedly bullish, but it was not generally thought that the lift would be so great as that announced today. The present high figure, however, is not the record for this market, for flour has been known to sell here at the extreme price of $6.25, though only for a short time. Now the prospect is for the maintenance of the high valuation, and in all probability a further boost before new crop wheat is available.

Egg Receipts Falling Off.
Egg receipts have shown a slight falling off the past few days, and as a result the market has held its own a trifle better than last week.

At 22 cents the market was reported steady to firm today, and as yet there is no complaint of accumulation of stock in local hands. The Sound markets continue to take eggs in rather a free way, and considerable quantities are going into storage here and on the Sound. The day's arrivals here totaled 445 cases, according to the Board of Trade.

The supply of poultry continues moderate and the market firm at the prices that have ruled all the week. Arrivals today were 44 coops of chickens one each of ducks and turkeys and 326 boxes of dressed stock.

Butter is Holding Its Own.
There was no further evidence of weakness in the butter trade today, and the situation on the whole, if changed at all, was a trifle firmer. City makers still quote 27 to 29 cents on their standard grades and most of them report the market reasonably clear all the time. Seattle is said to be buying freely for the Alaska trade and future wants at exposition time. Coast production this year is generally believed to be little, if any, greater than a year ago, while consumption has, of course, increased, which would to some extent account for the present show of strength in the market. Receipts from the outside today, as reported by the Board of Trade, were 141 cases, all Oregon butter.
